Getting here: By Train or Bus

The nearest train station is 2½ miles away in Hebden Bridge, on the route from Leeds to Manchester.

Bus stops are plentiful in Hebden Bridge, from where you can walk the 2½ miles to Hebden Hey, or catch a further shuttle/smaller bus to Heptonstall or Slack and walk along the track - so avoiding the steep climb out of Hebden Bridge.

Getting here: By Road

Exits from the M62 are J21 (Littleborough, Todmorden, Hebden Bridge) if coming from west, or J24 (Halifax, Mytholmroyd, Hebden Bridge) if coming from east.

Access to the centre is along approx. 1½ miles of private single track road. The road has been tarmaced, yet we ask you to drive slowly; for your own sakes, as well as to avoid erosion to the road.

Approaching from Halifax:

- Follow the signs for A646 towards Burnley into Hebden Bridge.
- Pass straight through the first two sets of traffic lights and pedestrian crossing then over the river, and through the town passing the CO-OP.
- You cannot turn right at the next set of lights, so use the turning circle and look for the Fox and Goose pub as you return.
- Turn Left at the traffic lights/Fox & Goose pub
- Climb the (steep) hill and follow the road to the right. (over the hump-back brow)

- There is now a 100m section of single carriageway controlled by traffic lights, our access track is immediately RIGHT AFTER this narrow section.
- Follow this road to the end. (approx. 1½ miles)

DO NOT ATTEMPT to turn right BEFORE the traffic lights, this is steep, narrow, slippery and simply THE WRONG ROAD!
